

Start Fieldhouse Work

Construction has started on a 180-foot extension to the Smith Fieldhouse.

Power equipment of Bettilyon's, Inc., contractors of Salt Lake City, has been moved into place and a protective fence is under construction. The Bettilyon company was low bidder among twelve contractors with an offer of $312,061.

The addition, to be built on the west end of the fieldhouse, will increase the building area by 28,950 square feet. Completion date is listed for next December.

The new addition will provide a much-needed indoor area for outdoor sports. Besides serving the baseball, football and track teams, it will also be utilized for instructional purposes by physical education and intramural groups on campus.

The extension will be 180 feet long and 161 feet wide. It will have the same brick exterior finish as the rest of the building, and it will be accessible to the main section of the fieldhouse by roll-up doors on the north and south track lanes.

Skylights will be built in the roof, and protected windows will be extended the length of the north and south walls. Floors for the new structure will be tankbar, and the area will be heated and ventilated.

The new addition will increase the utility of the entire fieldhouse. It will provide a 140-yard track straightaway and thus broaden the university's indoor track program.

Although the addition will not increase the seating capacity in the main section of the fieldhouse, it will remain the largest structure of its kind in the intermountain area.

Construction Date Made On New Home for Y Bell

Construction begins this week on the $5,000 Y Bell Tower, according to Ted Sandberg, chairman of the student committee on the tower.

The edifice will be constructed directly north of the top of the staircase leading from Smith Fieldhouse to upper campus. It will be completed within a few weeks.

Y Bell Tower will be constructed of iron girders and will consist of 20-foot high stands with 5-foot girders connecting the two side poles.

There will be three separate stands with the bell suspended from the center one. The tower will stand on a platform 18 feet by 28 feet. The cement platform will be cantilevered with an overhang of approximately eight feet on three sides.

Fits Campus Design

Architect for the tower is Fred Markham, consultant for most of Brigham Young University's buildings. It is modernistic and fits in with the campus' general design, according to Sandberg.

Money for the Y Bell tower has been collected since 1950 by various campus organizations through many fund-raising projects.

Groundbreaking was held on Feb. 26, 1958, with Pres. Ernest L. Wilkinson turning the first spade.

Sandberg said the Old Y Bell has been hung to symbolize all major BYU achievements and that it will continue to do so. In addition, the committee is attempting to set up a sound and lighting system to be used for pep activities.

State Funeral, Hero's Burial Set for Dulles

by United Press International
WASHINGTON—A funeral of High State Ceremony and a hero's burial await John Foster Dulles Wednesday in the nation's final tribute to the man who guided U.S. foreign policy through six years of cold war.

Dulles succumbed quietly in his sleep at 7:49 a.m. EDT Sunday after a three-month battle against cancer. His death at Walter Reed Army Medical Center brought expressions of sympathy pouring into Washington from the free world's leaders.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—A 20-year-old fledgling airline stewardess described Monday how she wrapped one arm around a DC-3 pilot and the other around a seat to keep him from being sucked out of the plane when its door popped open 6,000 feet in the air.

LONDON—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev flew to Communist Albania Monday on a 13-day visit that may spark a new communist drive to split NATO allies in the Mediterranean.

GENEVA—The western big three pushed a last minute attempt Monday to win Soviet "Sand in Their Shoes" tickets sold out for Friday and Saturday night and few tickets are left for next Monday's performance, according to the Smith Fieldhouse ticket office.

Students are advised to get tickets for the Tuesday and Wednesday performances at the office. Admission for the outdoor musical is $1.50 for adults. There are no reserved seats.

"Sand in Their Shoes" has a cast of over 700 with seven leads. The stage is nearly as long as a football field and features three turntables. A huge stereophonic sound system, devised by Dr. Harvey Fletcher, will be used.

All music for the production has been composed by Dr. Crawford Gates of the Brigham Young University music faculty. The musical has been adapted to the stadium setting by Dr. Harold L. Hanson, director, for the book by Don Ocasarson, a BYU graduate in history.

ROTC Readies Spring Review

The eighth annual Spring Review and Awards Ceremony of the Air Force ROTC Cadet Corps at Brigham Young University is scheduled for 4 p.m. Monday. It has been announced by Col. Barnett S. Allen, professor of Air Science.

The review will take place on the grass area just north of the George Albert Smith Fieldhouse, and members of the corps will receive the 21 awards to be presented for various achievements during the past school year.

The change of command ceremony when the present commander of the corps relinquishes his command to the new commander will also take place at that time.

The forwards will be presented by BYU officials and chairmen of the departments in which the cadets are majoring.

The public invited to attend.

MOOSTERS—Dallas Merrell, executive assistant to the identity president, and Ted Sandberg, student chairman of the Y Bell tower committee, review plans for the 180-foot tower. Construction will begin this week.

Costs for housing and meals for both teenagers and adults will be nominal. It has been reported.

Smith Family Living Center will be headquarters for special exhibits during Leadership Week. Exhibits will be sponsored by colleges and other academic and non-instructional units at BYU. Ford Foundation discussion groups and Utah County Red Cross chapter will also sponsor exhibits.

Some items to be shown are reading machines with language records, an illuminated display of records such as family group sheets properly and improperly filled out, maps showing areas where microfilming has been available to genealogists.

Show BYU Story

Public Relations will show the story of BYU—past, present and future—and will display a map of all new buildings planned for BYU.

Costumes will be displayed by the College of Fine Arts in operation with the Speech and Debate and the college of Commerce will emphasize accurate record keeping with a display titled "Out of the Book Ye Shall be Judged."

Toward a Richer Life" will be the theme of all College of Family Living exhibits. An exhibit on home language will be displayed by the Homemaking Education Dept.

Travel Studies is planning a panorama of the tours being offered this year. A large model jet plane will set off the theme of modern travel.

Following the theme of Leadership Week, the College of Recreation, Physical and Health Education and Athletics will have an animated figure display stressing the importance of physical fitness. Boy Scout uniforms and camping equipment will be shown.

Accident Victims Released From Local, Student Hospitals

Brigham Young University students, victims of recent accidents, have been released from Utah Valley Hospital and Donald Health Center.

In the same accident were released earlier.

Treated and released Friday were Marlene Moss (1N, Lewisville, Calif.), and Robert Norman Lewis (1T, Grass Valley, Calif.), and Jean Ann Taylor (1E, Lewiston, Calif.).

The latter three were injured Thursday night when struck by a car driven by Dr. Ernest L. Wilkinson, Brigham Young University president. The three were walking along the road at 1230 N. 165 W. when the accident occurred.

HARANGUE

by Ronald Duane Safsten

The senior class, one of the longest-established social organizations on campus, bounces its annual ball Friday.

Resources from deep within this aged group of education-smithy-makers say their soiree will rival most of the seat-of-the-pants and party-planning classes in heady glimmer and glittering spectacle.

Seriously—before hordes of Safsten-anted seniors come knocking on my head—this Senior Ball affair is the last—and possibly the most important—studentbody dance of this week (one of those people who enjoy being right and safe in the smothering breath).

Well, perchance, you have come this far in the year and still wonder whom you could take to something like this, and, well, since you come to your waning senses and decide to attend, must bash before breaking out in your quarterly rash of embarrassment—let's have a no passionate behavior on the dance floor.

Embarrass easily.

An old Brigham Young University tradition will be observed Saturday when zealous members of BYU's Class of '59 will climb Y Mountain to paint a large numeral '59 on the cliff high above the whitewashed block Y. (Timely News Item.)

ponderous huzzah for established traditions.

Am I smirking "What's in it for Me?" skeptics should be extra-careful more such fascinating, hoary, customs.

For instance, why don't we have an annual Parking Ticket Party in the middle of the Campus Security office?

Students could save up their parking violations and on the following night after an owl flies across the full moon whoever accumulated the most tickets during the tumultuous school year would be presented a richly embossed certificate of expulsion by the Campus Security office.

Why would then lead a solemn procession of fellow violators over the pile of tickets, chanting "Justice must be served" in different languages (for, as we have suspected for years, this is a cosmopolitan school. People from many lands get dunned here).

For this awe-inspiring jaunt, the bonfire would be started by a Security patrolman with flint.

A yearly search could be made in the Grant Library for the quietest Spot. The only drawback to this is that, unless sufficient freshmen were fooled into thinking there's a quiet spot to be found in that majestic old echo canyon, the search would lose its appeal after a time.

Maybe—and this is just a suggestion—we should have a journey up Y Mountain to paint the graduating class on the face of the cliffs. No, I guess that's a little childish. I have forgotten I even mentioned it.

"You've failed in Agronomy, Business Management, Home Decorating, Party-Planning—even Journalism. There's nothing for you to do now but Teach."

Education Dept. Meet to Honor 'Miss Handicap'

Miss U.S. Handicap will be guest of honor at a special education meeting at 4 p.m. Tuesday in 1125 Smith Family Living Center.

Miss Beth Davis, who has been stricken with polio three times, was first Miss Handicap of Utah. Upon going east, she was given the higher honor.

Shown at the meeting will be a film entitled "For Those Who Are Exceptional." The film describes special education for all types of exceptional children in the state of Illinois. Some areas covered are deaf, blind, gifted and emotional problems.

Sponsored by the Educational Research and Services Dept., the meeting is open to anyone who is interested in attending.

Cancel Square Dance Roundup

Square-dance round-up scheduled for Monday will not be held, according to Mary B. Jensen of the Women's Physical Education Dept.

Square-dancers will be invited to join the Square Dance Club, according to Miss Jensen. Folk-dancers participated in the University of Utah folk dancing festival on Tuesday instead of presenting a festival at Brigham Young University.

Miss Jensen, who would have directed the square dance festival, will be in Denver Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the National Square Dance Convention. She will create one program and teach dancing during the convention.

Golf, Tennis Teams Finish in Upper Half

Led by Dean James, the Cat linksmen finished behind New Mexico and Colorado State for the title. Whereas the golfers were in contention, the netmen were a distant fourth in the contest, with Utah dominating the matches.

The linksmen finished third in their meet held Friday in Denver, Colo. The netmen were fourth in the matches which were held Friday and Saturday in Salt Lake City.

Utah's racquetmen won every possible point, 18, and thus ended a season in which they went without a single loss in Skyline action.

Denver placed second with 10 victories, New Mexico third with 6, BYU fourth with 4, Wyoming 3, Utah State 1, and Montana and Colorado State 0.
